UURMAPA at GA: Welcome Retirees!

UURMAPA President Dick Gilbert and Vice-President Jim Eller represented us at the “Justice GA” in Phoenix, AZ in June. Jim was in charge of arrangements and co-hosted with UUMA President Bill Hamilton-Holway a “Collegial Conversation” on the work of UUMA’s task force on retirement. Dick Gilbert was also present along with a contingent of about a dozen other retirees who did some deep, honest and sometimes painful sharing. The purpose of the gathering was to receive more input for the task force which will have a face-to-face meeting later this summer. The program at the North Attleboro regional conference October 2-4 will feature a report of the task force from several of its members. Jim Eller and Chris Backus (representing partners) are UURMAPA representatives.

Keeping in Touch

Kathleen Hunter and Alan Deale we went to Peterborough ON for Jeannette Morgan’s 90th birthday on July 29 (Jeannette’s husband, John Morgan, was minister at Toronto First when Kathleen first became a UU). Charles and Nancy Eddis and Anne Orfald were also there. Kathleen reports that it was a great event. On a sad note, Anne’s husband, Scott, recently had a stroke and is not doing well.

Sue Nichols is recovering well from a knee replacement. She says she enjoyed receiving good wishes from far-flung places. She will graduate from rehab as soon as she can manage the 46 steps from the street to their apartment. She notes that 100+ year old buildings don’t have space for elevators.

Dorothy Boroush is receiving treatment for lung cancer and has the help and support of the Taunton Church and her son who lives in Boston. Cards and emails are welcomed.

Gregg Carter, Fred Gillis and Judith Downing, all former ministers of the Westminster UU Church in East Greenwich, RI were part of the large ministerial presence at that church’s dedication of its new building in June. Also, Carolyn Marshall is an active member of the church.

Betsy and Fred Stevens both pursue their interest in history---Betsy with the Duxbury Church archives and Fred with the Civil War.

“Aging Is the Ultimate Extreme Sport”

The T-shirt at GA caught my attention immediately with its in-your-face wisdom: “Aging is the ultimate extreme sport.” It prompted quiet reflection amidst the hubub of this gathering of the UU tribe in Phoenix. We were there to bear witness to justice for immigrants. While there we were reminded of the courage of those families who left their homes behind and migrated north to an uncertain future; and about the courage of our fellow UU’s who risked and experienced arrest while doing civil disobedience in protest of the unjust SB 1070.

In my stream of consciousness I then was swept to think about those extreme sports like mountain climbing with its life and death risks. Not a few have lost their lives on the peaks of our planet – I think of a poignant cell phone call from one dying climber who tearfully spoke last words of love to his family. I thought of those who try to sail around the world solo. These folks deliberately put their lives on the line in the interest of human adventure. Why climb mountains or sail seas? Because they are there.

And then the T-shirt, worn by a colleague about my age, came back into focus. I’ve risked arrest in protests; I’ve skied on some rather scary slopes; I’ve even tried a rock-climbing wall, but nothing quite compares with the ultimate extreme sport of aging.

It is not so much the physical courage required in civil disobedience or in high climbing or dangerous sailing that aging requires. It is the spiritual courage to know that the causes one has spent a career serving have not yet come to fruition, and won’t during our lifetime; that the dreams of youthful idealism are just not going to be fulfilled, and learning to live with it.

It is the spiritual courage to yield leadership to younger colleagues who may do it differently; to see the faith one loves moving in a direction uncomfortable to us.

It is the spiritual courage to face up to our limitations and not feel self-pity; to bid a fond farewell to good friends; to lose a beloved partner or child and keep living life to the full even when lonely.

It is the spiritual courage to realize that we will not live to see how the lives of our children and grandchildren fully unfold.

It is the spiritual courage to know that, after all, life is terminal – even the good life we have tried to lead.

I don’t know who said “aging is the ultimate extreme sport,” but he or she knew what they were talking about. The T-shirt is good for a laugh – or a good cry – or some very deep meditation. The next time you hear someone talking about the fortitude it must require for the extreme sports of our adventurous athletes, remind them of these wise words. There are athletes of the spirit who find in the process of aging quite enough adventure to challenge and satisfy the human spirit.

GASTON MARCEL CARRIER (1920-2012)

The Ministries and Faith Development staff offers our condolences to the family and colleagues of the Rev. Dr. Gaston Marcel Carrier who died on June 20, 2012. He was 92 years old.

Rev. Carrier was born in Montréal, Québec, Canada on January 14, 1920 to Alfred and Adelina (LaPierre) Carrier. Rev. Carrier attained his Bachelor of Arts degree from McMaster University in Hamilton, Ontario and Acadia University in Wolfville, Nova Scotia in 1941. After studies in theology at the Montréal Divinity School and Emmanuel College, he received his B.D. from Meadville Theological School in 1947. He then went on to earn a Master of Education from the University of Bridgeport, CT in 1959, and a Master of Arts in French Literature from the University of Vermont in 1968. He received an honorary Doctor of Divinity from Meadville Lombard Theological School in 1973.

Rev. Carrier was ordained by the United Church of Canada in Montreal on September 10, 1943. In the early years of his ministry, he worked at Unitarian churches in Ottawa, Ontario, Canada and Cohasset, MA. He then went on to work at the First Grace Universalist Church in Lowell, MA from 1952-1957; and the Universalist Congregation of Danbury, CT from 1957-1961. In 1961, he was called to the First Unitarian Universalist Society of Burlington, VT. He stayed there until his retirement in 1978 when he was also voted Minister Emeritus of the church.

Rev. Carrier was active in the Civil Rights Movement and helped found Planned Parenthood in Burlington, VT. He was a member of the American Association of Pastoral Counselors, the Community Council of Greater Burlington, the Burlington Council of Churches, and the Champlain Valley Clergy Association.

A true bibliophile, Rev. Carrier enjoyed adding to his library whenever possible. Throughout his long life, he pursued an abiding love of all things French Canadian including history, literature, language, culture and antiques. A writer, he published a book, Prayers, in 1971; and in 1973, he wrote and published a children's story entitled Johnny Peanut.

Throughout his ministry (and in all these endeavors), Rev. Carrier was supported by his wife of 64 years, an active Unitarian-Universalist, Mary (Archibald) Carrier. Although Mary had a demanding full-time career of her own, she was the Director of Religious Education at both the Burlington and Danbury churches, and was tremendously active on committees and in the life of both churches, as well as in Lowell. She accompanied Rev. Carrier to General Assembly, and hosted "Thursday Night Suppers" for small groups of parishioners to encourage community and discussion, rotating through the entire congregation and then starting all over again. A true ministerial partner, she supported her husband's ministry in extraordinary ways throughout his career and their lives together.

In a personal statement, Rev. Carrier once noted that he established his ministry "upon a foundation of personal dedication, utter sincerity, and rich inner resources of a kind and generous spirit."

Rev. Carrier is survived by daughter, Michèle Carrier; daughter, Natalie Carrier and her husband, David Ackerman; daughter, Jill Carrier and her husband, David Duncan; daughter, Hilarie Terebessy and her husband, David Terebessy; grandchildren, Samuel and Sarah Duncan, and Matthew and Nina Terebessy; his brother, Jean-Paul Carrier; and many nieces and nephews. He was predeceased by his wife, Mary (Archibald) Carrier.

In lieu of flowers, donations in Rev. Carrier's memory may be sent to the Committee on Temporary Shelter, P.O. Box 1616, Burlington, VT 05402.

A memorial service, overlooking Lake Champlain, will be held on Saturday, September 1, 2012 at 2 p.m. at Bishop Booth Conference Center, 20 Rock Point Circle, Burlington, VT, 05408.

UURMaPA at GA

Dick and Jim hosted a luncheon for newly retired clergy and partners, about 24 in total. (See picture on page 1). After good food and conversation Dick and Jim led a ceremony of welcome into UURMAPA. Jim attended a UUA-sponsored lunch for families of ministers who died during the past year; Dick was at a UUMA-sponsored lunch for presidents of the various groups — UUMA, UURMAPA, LREDA, UU Musicians Network, administrator and membership groups and others. Jim and Dick paraded the UURMAPA banner during the opening ceremony; and Dick welcomed the newly retired ministers at the Service of the Living Tradition. It was a busy GA and we were there!

On the lighter side!! from Chris Backus

If it sounds easy you don't have all the facts. -- James L. Brewer

"It is impossible to enjoy idling unless there is plenty of work to do." -- Jerome K. Jerome

A nine-year-old boy was looking with interest at an ornate plaque in the foyer of the church, inscribed with many names. He asked the minister who they were. "Oh," she replied, "they all died in the service."

Looking rather alarmed, the child asked, "Were they at the 9:30 or 11 o'clock service?"

Retired Sarasota minister Richard Benner is having surgery at Sarasota Memorial at 7:00 AM on June 20, for what may be a malignant brain tumor. I suspect he would appreciate any contact from colleagues, a phone call, a card, an e-mail-- whatever you feel comfortable with. Dick has two sons, one who lives nearby and one who lives on the West Coast. Sarasota church members tell me that his wife Susan is very reserved. Dick Benner served the Omaha church for more than seven years until his retirement from the ministry in December 2005. He was born, raised, and educated in the state of Maine. He holds Masters Degrees in both education and divinity and graduated from Bangor Theological Seminary in the early 1970s. He served in Sarasota from 1987 to 1999.

Lee Giles Hirstein reports that her father, Phil Giles, "is very much with us at 95..." He now has a full-time caregiver and has moved to a new spot on an independent living floor (#318) at the same place in Hoffman Estates. Lee says at times her father is "ebullient" and he loves the constant company of his caregiver. She says, "It's a relief to see the old spark returning." Phil would welcome notes or you can send an email greeting through Lee at iplayit@gmail.com.

WILLIAM RONALD JONES (1933-2012)

The Ministries and Faith Development staff offers our condolences to the family and colleagues of the Reverend Dr. William Ronald Jones who died on July 13, 2012 at the age of 78.

Rev. Jones was born in Louisville, KY on July 17, 1933 to Henry and Lannie (Brogsdale) Jones. Rev. Jones attained his Bachelor of Arts degree in Philosophy from Howard University in 1955. He then went on to earn a Master of Divinity from Harvard University in 1958, and a Ph.D. in Religious Studies from Brown University in 1969.

Rev. Jones was ordained by the Unitarian Society of Wellesley Hills, MA on June 15, 1958. From 1958-1960, he was the Assistant Minister and Director of Religious Education at the Church of the Mediator (now the First Unitarian Universalist Church) in Providence, RI. From 1977-2012, he served as a community minister at Florida State University. Notably, he was a member of the UUA Board of Trustees from 1993-2000, and worked with the Liberal Religious Educators Association (LREDA) to develop resources for professional religious educators.

Rev. Jones authored articles regarding oppression and the church's role in social change. His work has been the subject of a vast number of newspaper and journal articles as well as dissertations. In 1978, he co-edited Black Theology II, and in 1973, Beacon Press published Rev. Jones' controversial piece, Is God A White Racist? A Preamble to Black Theology.

In his seminal work, Is God A White Racist?, Rev. Jones introduced the thesis for his life's work: It has often been said that asking the right question is as important as supplying the correct answer. Whether correct or incorrect, this generalization describes the purpose in the following pages. To paraphrase Kant's admonition, my objective is to force the black theologians and their readers to pause a moment and, neglecting all that they have said and done, to reconsider their conclusions in the light of another question: Is God a white racist? My concern throughout is to illuminate the issues this pregnant question introduces into the arena of black theology and religion. The black theologian, I contend, cannot avoid this issue of divine racism, because it is implicit in his theological method, purpose, and content.

An internationally recognized and celebrated activist, scholar, philosopher, theologian, and educator, Rev. Jones dedicated his long career to the analysis and methods of oppression, and to working with others in their anti-oppression initiatives. A fundamental part of his work was the exploration of religious humanism and liberation theology.

Rev. Jones' academic and professional endeavors were broad and vast. He helped found and became the Director of the Department of African-American Studies as Florida State University. He was also an associate professor at Yale Divinity School, a visiting lecturer at Howard University, and a visiting professor at Brown University, Princeton University, and Union Theological Seminary, among others. Some of his professional affiliations included the American Academy of Religion, the American Humanist Association, the American Philosophical Association, the Religious Education Association, the Society for the Study of Black Religion, the Society for the Study of Christian Ethics, and the Unitarian Universalist Ministers Association (UUMA).

Rev. Jones received a vast number of awards over the years including the Urban League Family of the Year Award (1963), the Richard Allen Award (1972), Yale's A. Whitney Griswold Award (1974), the Martin Luther King, Jr. Distinguished Scholar Award (1986), the Bragg Humanist of the Year Award (1989), the American Humanist Association Humanist of the Year (1992), the UUA's Holmes Weatherly Award (1995), and the African American Culture and Philosophy Award (1996), to name just a few.

Rev. Jones is survived by his former wife of 35 years, Lauretta H. Jones; sons Jeffrey Jones, Esq. and Darrell Jones; brother, Cecil Jones; sister, Gilmer Jones Callender; as well as many nieces, nephews, cousins, and friends.

A celebration of the life of the Rev. Dr. Jones will be held on August 19, 2012 at 2 p.m. at the Nancy Smith Fichter Theatre in Montgomery Hall at Florida State University, 130 Collegiate Loop, Tallahassee, FL 32306.

Notes of condolence may be sent to The Jones Family, 2410 Limerick Drive, Tallahassee, FL 32309.

The Rev. Dr. Jones is, perhaps, most lovingly remembered for a principle by which he lived: "You show your love through actions, not words alone."

CONNIE PIRNIE STERNBERG (1929-2012)

The Ministries and Faith Development staff offers our condolences to the family and colleagues of the Reverend Connie Pirnie Sternberg who died on May 27, 2012. She was 82 years old.

Rev. Sternberg was born in Exeter, NH on November 18, 1929 to James and Harriette (Farrell) Pirnie. Rev. Sternberg attained her Bachelor of Arts degree from Cornell University in 1951. She then went on to earn a Master of Arts from Columbia University Teacher's College in 1954, and a Master of Divinity from New York Theological Seminary in 1988.

Rev. Sternberg was ordained by the Community Church of New York on May 7, 1989. She was called to the Unitarian Universalist Society: East in East Manchester, CT in 1989, and there, she stayed, until her retirement in 2001. She remained a member of the UU Society: East for the rest of her life.

Her fondest memories of growing up in Exeter, NH included singing in the choir at the Unitarian Church (which she joined as a teenager), and organizing an interfaith youth group which brought Protestant, Catholic and Jewish youth together for socializing and supporting American troops during World War II.

During her time in Manchester, CT, Rev. Sternberg was a leader of the Connecticut Council for Inter-religious Understanding and was active in many causes, including maintaining the separation of church and state and supporting civil rights for the lesbian and gay community.

Rev. Sternberg met her husband, Hal, in New York City in 1976, and they were married a year later. Hal provided dedicated support throughout her ministerial career, and often said that he loved being "married to the minister." He died in December, 2007.

In a sermon given on May 9, 2010, Rev. Sternberg spoke of, her final year at the New York Theological Seminary. Her theology professors offered the UU students the opportunity to pick topics other than the traditional Holy Trinity. She and her classmates "refused and tackled the same subjects as the rest of the class." She went on to say, "Each evening two students were called upon to read their papers. When the topic was the Trinity, there was a loud call: 'We want to hear from the Unitarians!' We were both applauded and appreciated. By then, we had all decided that even though our theologies, rituals, and sources of reflection were different, we were in the same business. We were unity in diversity."

Rev. Sternberg is survived by a step-daughter, Jill Sternberg; a step-son, Carl Sternberg and his wife, Virginia; as well as a grandson, Michael; her brother-in-law Morton Sternberg and his wife Ruth; and her sister-in-law, Marilyn Sternberg.

A memorial service will be held on June 30, 2012 at 1 p.m. at Unitarian Universalist Society: East, 153 West Vernon St., Manchester, CT 06042.

Notes of condolence may be sent to Jill Sternberg, 123 Seventh Ave., Mailbox 251, Brooklyn, NY 11215.
